Dear Ms Rawé,

Thank you for your detailed letter of 7th March which I have read carefully. Ha!Ha!Ha!

I appreciate you are disappointed that after almost 7 years you have not been able to achieve your overall objective of being 'reinstated to the position I was in when I received the fraudulent service charge demand in 2002' despite taking up the matter with regulators, ombudsmen and government departments.

In my 24.03.09 reply, I provided him more "evidence"

As matters stand, I believe you have exhausted your options; the only advice I can offer, however, is that if you have new evidence you should take legal advice.

With kind regards and best wishes,

Right! Job done!

Now I can go back to "providing useful access to every British ambassador in the world; charge £5,000 to £8,000 for a half day's work... because, of course, I am self-employed, so nobody pays for my salary".

Yours sincerely,

The gall!

"I read a lot" - could have added: and ignore anything I, and my 'brothers' (Persecution # 6) don't like'
