Dear Ms Rawe,

Thank you for your letter of 4th August 2002. I am sorry that you are not satisfied with the Authority's response.

The Authority has no investigative powers and fulfils its statutory responsibilities for scrutiny of the Metropolitan Police Service through a comprehensive committee structure.

Who meet to do what?
Have tea and cucumber sandwiches...at the taxpayer's expense?

There was no intention to question the facts, only to acknowledge that there is a legal requirement for the police to secure independent, corroborative evidence that these acts were committed by the alleged perpetrator before bringing criminal proceedings.

I am sorry that you are not satisfied with the Authority's response, but you will appreciate that Members' responsibilities are bound by legal statute.

Yours sincerely,

pp
